As part of the preparations for this meeting [between North and South Korean delegations], it was [decided] that a joint meeting take place in February 1955 in Panmunjom to discuss commercial, cultural and post-office ties between North and South Korea.

[Accordingly] both governments allow for meetings and relations [being established] between parties and mass organizations in [both] North and South Korea.

A rally took place in Pyongyang on October 31 to support the aforementioned call [for meetings].

Signed

Ambassador Tatu Jianu
