"Letter from R. C. Treweeks, Defense Intelligence Staff, to Alan C. Goodison, Eastern Department of the Foreign Office", August 26, 1964, Wilson Center Digital Archive, British National Archives, FO 371/175844. Originally published in Avner Cohen and William Burr, eds., National Security Archive Electronic Briefing Book #432 (June 25, 2013). <https://digitalarchive.umd.edu/document/117139>

Summary:

Referring to Goodison and Kellas' correspondence, Treweeks states that evidence shows that the Canadian report concerning an Argentine-Israeli uranium deal was incorrect and that there is little evidence for an Israeli plutonium separation facility.

Dear Goodison

Thank you for the copy of your letter to Kellas in Tel Aviv of 29th April and Kellas' reply of 6th July, 1964. Three points emerge:

First, all available evidence shows that the Canadian report concerning negotiation for an "agreement" between Israel and the Argentine for the purchase of 80-100 tons of Argentine uranium concentrate was incorrect. There may have been exploratory conversations to this end, but of an actual "agreement" there is no evidence to support the Canadian report.

Second, there is little evidence available in D.I.S. to support the view that the Israelis have a chemical separation plant in working order. We have a suspicion that the building described by the Americans in their second visit as a "laundry" may be intended as a separation plant but, if we accept the now detailed statement from the third American visit at its face value, the building can hardly have had appropriate equipment in it at the time of the visit.

Last, Kellas' suggestion that the chemical separation plant could be housed in the reactor building is very unlikely. Chemical separation is a tricky business and, on past experience of the nuclear programme, requires to be housed in a building of its own.

Yours sincerely
R. C. Treweeks
